

It would appear that the Chairman of the North East Maritime Trust, Mr Alec Renwick, has been planning his assault on it's website, nemaritimetrust.co.uk, since 14th October 2022:-

The attack was halted when he seized control of nemaritimetrust.co.uk, by deceit on or before 15th of March 2024, when he persuaded the provider at that time, TSOHost, to swap the administrator to chockerblock from the one who had been maintaining the site for ten years, The Dog Watch.

As TSOHost could not be persuaded to return the administration of the site to its rightful owner, Nominet was used to transfer the hosting to IONOS, and it was completed April 17th 2024 yet within two months, June 13th 2024, TSOHost admit that nemaritimetrust.co.uk had not belonged to the Chairman of NEMT after all. In the email, addressed to Mr Dawson, they said:-

To ensure that your website remains active while you're making these updates to your DNS records, we will use a proxy to redirect to your new hosting package.

Please note: this proxy will be removed after 30 days. If the server IP address hasn't been updated within this time, your website will NOT be accessible.

The reason the provider was changed was that the Chairman was publishing misinformation and Mr Dawson had no way of correcting it and until he can view the proxy it may be safer for him to assume that the site he is reconstructing from the archive will be overwritten by the Chairman's fraudulent misrepresentations.

I rest my case.

Mick Dawson
